The Class of 2016 undertook 3 projects. First, they coordinated with Family Promise to build a picnic pavilion for their clients to take advantage of the outdoor space, encourage time with family, and maintain some small sense of normalcy at a stressful time. The second project teamed with Family Promise as well to create a giving garden, maintained by the staff and clients, to help supply the facility with fresh fruits and vegetables. The fully fenced in, lighted garden has multiple raised beds, pots, and hanging baskets to allow for a variety of product to be planted. The final project was in collaboration with the FriendshipAPL, and created an fun, upbeat, educational and promotional video to inspire the community to adopt, donate and support the local APL.

The Class of 2017 tackled 3 different projects. The first project was a Veteran's History project. In coordination with the Library of Congress's efforts to capture vocal histories from retired Veterans as they begin to age, the team coordinated the scheduling and interviewing of several local Veterans of the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Their histories were recorded both audio and visually, the audio recordings were submitted to the Library of Congress and the video recordings were saved for future use by local VFW organizations. The second project was a storage building project for Blessing House, an organization focused on providing a safe haven for children in times of crisis and support for their families. The team managed the funds from a grant to purchase and build a free standing storage facility on the current grounds. With donations and team support they were able to landscape the area as well. The third project created a new program for LLC called Setting Up Youth for Success. This simulation is modeled after the poverty simulation class members partake in during the class year, but is changed to focus on surviving real world adult situations that many students do not learn how to navigate before striking out on their own. The simulations was successfully piloted with Clearview H.S. Sophomores and the team has stayed involved as the program is solidified and prepared to be offered to additional schools and organizations.
